NINETEEN TWO

To
Colonel Thomas Stephen Kenan,
U. S., 1857,
A Worthy Representative of the Loyal Alumni of the University, it is our pleasure to dedicate this book.

HON. THOS. S. KENAN,
Ex-Attorney General, Class of 1857.

Sketch of Col. Kenan

Thomas Stephen Kenan was born near Kenansville, in Duplin County, North Carolina, on the twelfth day of February, 1838. His preparation for college was gotten at the "Grove Academy" at Kenansville, under Rev. James M. Sprunt. He took the Freshman course at Wake Forest College, but the following year, 1854, he entered the Sophomore Class at the University of North Carolina, and graduated with the class of 1857.

For two years after graduation he attended Judge Pearson's Law School at Richmond Hill. He received his County Court license in December, 1858, and his Superior Court license in December, 1859, and entered immediately upon the practice of law in Kenansville.

At the outbreak of the Civil War in 1861, a company of volunteers, the Duplin Rifles, was promptly organized, with Mr. Kenan as captain. This company was mustered into service for six months; at the expiration of that time it was reorganized and assigned to the 43rd Regiment of State Troops, and Captain Kenan was elected to the colonelcy of this regiment. He served until the Battle of Gettysburg; here he was wounded and captured, and was kept a prisoner of war until hostilities ceased.

Since the war, Colonel Kenan has been almost constantly in public life, in the service of his State. He was member of the then House of Commons from Duplin in 1865-66, and in 1866-67. In 1868 he was candidate for Congress. In this same year he married Miss Sallie Dortch, of Aberdeen, Mississippi. He changed his residence to Wilson, N. C. in 1869. For two terms he was Attorney-General of North Carolina, from 1876 to 1885. At the present time he is Clerk of the Supreme Court of North Carolina. A man of broad culture and scholarly attainments, and a speaker of rare force, Colonel Kenan is reckoned among the highest in the legal profession in the State. He has at the same time a charm of manner which gains him wide popularity.

His love for the University has always been prominent; there are few undertakings for her advancement in which his influence is not felt. For many years he has been a trustee of the University. His election to the Presidency of the General Association of the Alumni of the University is an indication of the esteem in which he is held as an alumnus.

Facts About the History of the University of North Carolina, Which Students and Alumni Ought to Know

BY KEMP P. BATTLE, '49.

THE patriots of 1776, in the darkest period of the Revolution, in the constitution of the new state commanded the General Assembly to establish the University.

The charter was granted in 1789.

The chief agent in procuring the charter, and starting the institution on its career was William Richardson Davie, a graduate of Princeton, a dashing cavalry officer in the Revolution, Commissary-general under Greene, a member of the Federal Constitutional Convention of 1787, Governor of the State, Brigadier-general of the United States in the contemplated war with France, special minister to France to avert that war, an able lawyer and eloquent orator, "the Father of the University." The county of Davie and the Davie Poplar are his only monuments in North Carolina.

The first named in the charter was Samuel Johnston, then Governor.

The first meeting of the trustees was in Fayetteville, December 18th, 1789. The chairman was Charles Johnson, who had fought for the Pretender at Culloden.

This meeting started subscription papers for raising money to erect buildings. The largest subscribers were Alfred Moore, afterwards Federal Judge, and William Cain, ancestor of our Professor of Mathematics. $200 each.

The first President of the Board elected November 15th, 1790, was William Sencor, a hero of King's Mountain, then speaker of the Senate. He was the last survivor of the Charter trustees, dying in 1838.

The first benefactor was Benjamin Smith, afterwards Governor, who gave patents for 20,000 acres of land to be located in West Tennessee, then in the possession of the Chickasaw Indians. Their claim was afterwards extinguished and in 1835 the lands having been much injured by the earthquake of 1812, were sold for $14,000. Smith Hall (our library), Smith Island, and Smithville (now Southport) were named in his honor.

By a vote of the Trustees, the University was to be located within fifteen miles of Cyprett's (now Prince's) Bridge over New Hope, or the road from Raleigh to Pittsboro.

The commissioners to choose the site within the thirty mile circle were Frederick Hargett, Senator from Jones, chairman; Alexander Mebane, afterwards Member of Congress, of Orange; James Hogg, merchant of Hillsboro; William H. Hill, afterwards Member of Congress, New Hanover; David Stone, afterwards Governor and U. S. Senator; Willie Jones of Halifax, member of the Congress of the Confederation.

The donors of the site were Col. John Hogan, Benjamin Yeargin, Matthew and William McCauley, James Craig, Alexander Piper, Christopher Barbee, John Daniel, Mark and Hardy Morgan.

The corner stone of the first building, the Old East, was laid by Grand Master William Richardson Davie on the 12th of October, 1793. The lots of the village were sold on the same day by auction.

The original name of the place was New Hope Chapel Hill, there having been on the Pittsboro road before the Revolution, a chapel of the Church of England.

The doors were opened for students January 15th, 1795. Governor Richard Dobbs Spaight and a number of State officials but not one student, were present.

The first student arrived on February 12th, 1795—Hinton James of New Hanover—afterwards Assistant State Civil Engineer.

There was no President at first. The first Principal, styled "Presiding Professor," whose department was called that of Humanity, was David Ker, a graduate of Trinity College, Dublin; afterwards a judge of the Mississippi Territory.

Joseph Caldwell, a first honor Princeton man, who had been Professor of Mathematics since the fall of 1776, and for several years Presiding Professor, was made President in 1804. He continued to hold that office until his death in 1835, except four years, 1813-17, when at his request Rev. Robert H. Chapman was made President.

Dr. Caldwell was an active advocate of public schools and railroads. Caldwell County was named after him.

The chief part of the endowment of the University, which was lost in the Civil War, was from land warrants, to be located in West Tennessee, which had been granted to officers and soldiers of the North Carolina Continental troops, who had died without heirs. After Tennessee became a state she claimed these escheated warrants. The Legislature of North Carolina donated her claim to the University and our agent, Archibald D. Murphey, was forced by the Tennessee Legislature to give two-thirds of them to two Tennessee colleges.

After paying for the old West Building and putting on a third story on the Old East there was left an endowment of about $150,000.

Dr. Elisha Mitchell, Professor of Chemistry, Mineralogy and Geology, who lost his life on Mount Mitchell, the highest peak of the Black Mountains, in 1857, was from 1817 to 1825, Professor of Mathematics. He was then transferred to the Chair of Chemistry to succeed Denison Olmsted.

The first state Geological survey of North Carolina was by Denison Olmsted in 1824 and then by Dr. Mitchell, when it was discontinued.

Rev. Dr. James Phillips was Professor of Mathematics from 1826 to 1867, when he fell dead on the rostrum in Gerrard Hall, when he was about to offer up prayers.

His son, Rev. Dr. Charles Phillips, who was many years Professor of Mathematics and Civil Engineering, was chairman of the faculty 1875-'76, the first year of "the reopening."

The University is the only Southern State University not closed during the war.

It was closed when the old faculty was turned out in July, 1868; reopened January, 1869, closed again February, 1871.

By the Constitution of 1868 the Board of Education elected the trustees. By constitutional amendment in 1874 the election was given to the General Assembly. The trustees then elected reopened the doors in September, 1874.

The greatest number of students before the war was in 1857-'8, 461, of whom 168 were from other states than North Carolina. The greatest number since the war was in 1900-'01, 529.

The Presidents of the University have been as follows:

JOSEPH CALDWELL, D.D.,	1804-'13.
ROBERT HETT CHAPMAN, D.D.,	1813-'17.
JOSEPH CALDWELL, again,	1817-'35.

The Class of Nineteen-Two

Class History

MY desire is to write a history of the present Senior Class. I say desire, because neither I nor any one can give an adequate account of the subject in hand. The history has been written upon minds and in characters. The life that this class has led since it came together in the fall of 1898 has been a life of inward growth and strength gathering. There has as yet been little outward manifestation of the latent energy stored by contact with men and books. If the historian could get at these inner changes, he would have material for volumes. As this is impossible the best that can be done is to relate a few insignificant incidents of outwardly uneventful college life; but to accept these incidents as representative of what the class has done or is capable of doing would be unwarrantable.

It is now close upon four years since, with timid step and beating heart, the members of the class of '02 first came together upon the college campus. To us those years have seemed short indeed. We can testify that time flies in Chapel Hill as well as elsewhere. The passing time has not failed to bring changes, nor to leave its mark upon each and every one of our class. At first we numbered nearly a hundred. Now we are reduced to little more than half as many, though we have been joined by several students who were not with us at first. It is useless to deny that we were Fresh. Before our journey to Chapel Hill was ended we heard and were alarmed at gloomy tales of the trials and tribulations our predecessors had undergone at the hands of certain teachers, and the predictions were that we would catch it hot and heavy. So dark was this side of the picture made to appear that we wondered if we could ever meet the exactions of the faculty. Actual experience convinced us that the dangers were overdrawn. Our courage rose and brought with it stronger faith in ourselves.

None of us will ever forget the scenes of rejoicing and mirth when Virginia was defeated on the gridiron in the fall of 1898. The torchlight-and-tin-horn procession, and the bonfire (in the making of which mainly our Fresh energy was employed) are firmly fixed in our memories. When Washington's Birthday came around we did not fail to receive our share of medals, with snow balls thrown in for good measure. When vacation came we all went home glorying in Soph-hood. Vacation quickly passed away. After our return, class politics was a topic of much interest. This interest culminated in the never-to-be-forgotten Sophomore election. Since that time our college days have passed along much as before, pleasantly and uneventfully.

Now we see between us and Commencement only a few short months. Our college career is approaching an end. While we all are looking forward to the time when we shall enter upon our life's work, still we feel a lingering regret that the time will soon have come when the class of '02 will separate, never to meet as a whole again. Looking back over our college days, we see where we might have done better in many respects; but on the whole we may congratulate ourselves upon the results attained. In class work '02 has made a record of which she need not be ashamed. The Alpha Theta Phi has received more recruits from this class than from any class in the past. Many inter-society and inter-collegiate debaters have come from our ranks. Football and baseball have been heartily supported by '02, which has furnished many of the best men on all the teams. In all phases of college life the class has done its part. Let it be the duty of every one to see that the standard here maintained shall not be lowered in the world that lies before us.

HISTORIAN.

Fresh Class History

DEAR MR. EDITOR:

As I have been asked to write a history of the noble class of nineteen five I will try to do so, as we all like to do as we are told.

We are glad to have a chance to tell you what a great class we are, because some people don't seem to know that we are here, because they don't notice us, except those horrid Sophomores, and we wish they didn't because they say we are a peter class; and we don't think that is nice one bit.

We have been here a long time now and we don't get homesick much any more. We all try to look like Cash and Cooley because they don't ever look homesiek; they are so big and brave looking.

When we first got here they told us the Seniors and Juniors said that people shouldn't bother us, and the Sophomores said they would not. We thought they were mighty nice to do that, and we really got so that we thought we had as much right to whistle on the Campus as anybody, but they treated us horrid then, and everybody said we were fresh, so we stopped.

We don't think it is a bit nice the way they treat us and talk about us. We wish they treated us like the girls do at the B. F. U. They kiss the new girls and are awful nice to them. They did start to be nice to us, the Sophomores, I mean, not the girls. They were going to give us a watermelon feast, we only paid 25 cents apiece, but they said some wicked Juniors stole the watermelons, so we didn't get any.

We are beginning to like it here, though, except that sometimes some horrid Sophomores, we think treat us bad and we think that Horace puts water in the milk they feed us. And we don't like it to snow, because we are afraid to go on class, and Dr. Alexander says we will be expelled if we don't go on class.

We like to please our teachers, and we are going to learn a whole lot and be great and good men. We hope all other classes will be as nice and gentle as we are. We are going to be kind to the new boys next year, because we believe in the golden rule, all except Sturtevant and Parsons. From your loving little friend,

The Literary Societies

The Philanthropic Literary Society

Motto

Virtue, Liberty, and Science.

THE doors of the University were formally opened for the admission of students on the 12th day of February, 1795. On August 1st of the same year was formed the Concord Society, a division of the Debating Society, formed three weeks before that date. Just a year later, almost at the same time, the names of the two Societies were changed; the Debating Society became the Dialectic, and the Concord, the Philanthropic. For a while, it was allowable to be a member of both societies; Hinton James, of New Hanover, the first student enrolled at the University, was one of these; when duplicate membership was forbidden, he elected the Philanthropic.

The first meeting of the Concord Society was held August 10, 1795. The Society thus originated continued its regular weekly meetings until 1868, when it was suspended during the dark days of the University. Immediately upon the re-opening of the University in 1875, it resumed its meetings, and has ever continued to increase in ardor and zeal.

Since their beginning, the two Societies have led almost parallel existences, and they have ever been essential factors in the University's life. For many years, while membership of one or the other of them was compulsory for all students, the moral government of the University was put entirely into their hands. Probably in no College's history is there a similar case, where so much confidence and authority has been given to the student body by the faculty. This system, though not from its failure to succeed in every way, has in recent years been discontinued, and membership in the Societies is no longer compulsory.

This makes conditions, as is readily seen, decidedly more to the advantage of the societies. The membership is now confined to students who have a desire to take advantage of the opportunities afforded by the Societies for the development of literary and oratorical ability and the cultivation of friendship.

The record of the Philanthropic Society is a proud one. The walls of her beautiful hall are covered with fine portraits of her sons who have made their names famous. Here the faces of many who have been of weight in the Senate halls of their State and of their country, leaders in the church, in the legal profession, in industry, leaders in every walk of life, look down upon the visitor. The influences which developed these great men are still at work, and are probably stronger today than ever before. Never before has such appreciation been shown for the achievements of our intercollegiate debaters, and never before has there been such earnest rivalry for the honor of representing the Society and the University in the debates. It is a significant fact that the number of contestants for these appointments during the past year was but little less than twice as great as in any previous contests.

The outlook is bright. There is no doubt but that the Philanthropic Society is continuing, and will continue to send forth from her halls sons whose works will honor her, their University, and their State.

The Dialectic Society

1795

“LOVE OF VIRTUE AND SCIENCE.”

THE Dialectic Literary Society was founded in the year 1795 and for over a century has been an integral part of the University.

Since the inauguration of the first President the regular succession has been maintained. In 1868 when the University was about to pass into alien hands, Hon. Wm. H. Battle was chosen President and the other offices of the society were filled by other loyal alumni. These officers were instructed to reorganize whenever the friends of the University should again secure control. The reorganization took place at the reopening of the University in 1875.

The aim of the organization is to develop to a higher degree the oratorical and debating powers of the students, promote useful knowledge, and to cultivate lasting friendship among its members.

The career of the society has been one of usefulness and honor of which we are justly proud. It would be impossible to estimate of how much value the Dialectic and its sister society, the Philanthropic, have been to the University.

The Dialectic Hall contains the finest collection of portraits in North Carolina, these being the likenesses of distinguished members. The names of Governors, Judges, Congressmen, Cabinet Officers, Foreign Ministers, a President of the United States and others distinguished in many professions, may be found among those who have participated in the exercises of the Dialectic Society and afterwards testified to its thorough training by their careers of usefulness, for in the words of Ralph Waldo Emerson “It is the raw material out of which the intellect molds her splendid products.” May the society be able to adapt itself to ever changing conditions, so as to exert upon its future members the same magic power that gave us a Mangum and a Polk, a Badger, and a Vance.

The Young Men's Christian Association of the University of North Carolina was organized in May, 1860, with James Kelley, '60, as its first president. In the following year the infant association was robbed of its best members by the cruel war, and not until 1876 was there any reorganization. Then came forward several earnest toilers for the Master, such as J. H. Southgate and E. L. Harris, the latter of whom has recently gone to his reward.

In March, 1886, the State Convention met at Chapel Hill. This meeting seemed to give a new impetus to the association. The Student Volunteer Movement soon received into its ranks a large number of Christian students of the University. Thus the association has continued to grow until it has reached its present extended sphere of Christian service.

Its work is now, as has been intimated, broad in its scope. Being as it is the only religious organization in the University, this association has as its mission every phase of Christian development. For the accomplishment of this purpose its leaders have devised various plans for procedure.

Probably the device that reaches the greatest number of students is the one of securing from time to time public speakers. These speakers consist of the pastors of the various churches of Chapel Hill, ministers from different parts of the state, traveling secretaries of the Association, returned missionaries, and such other Christian workers as can be secured.

A department which has as its object general spiritual development is the semi-weekly prayer-meeting. This, however, is more limited in effect, as few except members attend. The meeting held on Tuesday evening is usually conducted by one of the members. The meeting on Thursday evening is an informal prayer service of some fifteen or twenty minutes.

Another important factor of the work of the association is the Bible and Mission study classes. These classes meet once a week, usually on Sunday. More than half the members of the association belong to one or more of these classes. In all the Bible work a deep interest is manifested, and leaders are being trained for efficient Christian service.

But the young men do not confine this work wholly to the University. The cry from Macedonia has reached their ears and touched their hearts. They have gone out into the surrounding country and there organized and furnished with proficient teachers several Sunday schools. These schools are attended by vast numbers of diligent and appreciative students of the Great Teacher.

The work thus sketched is growing in every department. With its body of earnest, consecrated Christian workers, its rapidly increasing membership and its broadening field of work, the Young Men's Christian Association of the University of North Carolina stands for far more than ever before in its history.

The Record of the Football Team of 1901

The record of the past year's football team, despite the two defeats which closed the Season is gratifying in the highest degree, and one which all who know the story of the development of the team take pride in. It is a desire that the University at large may know and appreciate what was accomplished by them, that prompts this history.

At the reopening of the University, when candidates for the team were called out, very few of them were old players, and most of the new applicants were entirely inexperienced in the game. The problem which presented itself to the management was the development of a team which would be worthy to represent the University, out of almost entirely raw material. That was what they worked for—a team worthy to represent the University; a winning team was too ambitious a hope. Osborne, Bennett, MacRae, and the mighty Graves were not with us; Smathers and Brem were disabled. Of the giants of the past year's team only Council and Foust remained.

The candidates, both old and new, realized from the beginning that their task was a difficult one, and they gave themselves heartily to the training and coaching. For a long while, the only encouragement the Coach would give to inquiries after the development of the team was that "he never saw more willing material."

Too much credit cannot be given to the able Coach of the team, Mr. Charles O. Jenkins, of Yale, and to those of our young alumni who gave up everything for a while to come to the assistance of the team. Chief among these were Messrs. Geo. H. Stephens, and George Graham, the latter the "Scrub's" coach. Neither can too much praise be given the "Scrub" team. Without their constant attendance and earnest work, the Varsity could not have developed into the fine machine it was. And last, but far from least, the way in which the student body supported and encouraged the team, cheering their efforts alike in victory and defeat, will remain to all among the most pleasant memories of the season.

The season opened with easy victories over Oak Ridge, A. and M., and Guilford. On November 1, the team left for the South. The next day they easily defeated Georgia by a score of 27 to 0.

At Auburn, Ala., on the following Monday, they played their first hard game against the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. The struggle was a severe one in which neither side could cross the other's goal. The game was won, by a score of 10 to 0, by two beautiful drop kicks from the field, by Graves, Carolina's quarterback.

In Raleigh, a week later, A. and M. was again defeated, 30 to 0, and then came the Virginia game. Our team was then in the pink of condition, and prepared to do its best. Let us pause and briefly compare the two teams.

Carolina's team averaged, per man, 157 pounds. The average weight of the Virginians was variously given by them, as from 178 to 183 pounds; they thus outweighed our team at least twenty pounds to the man. Our team played a fast, snappy game; the Virginia team, a heavy series of line-plunging plays. It was evident to all that the game was to be a contest between quickness and sheer weight.

The game was played in Norfolk, Va., November 23rd. Carolina started into the game with a rush that took the heavy Virginians off their feet, and carried the ball over for a touchdown in the first four minutes of play. Virginia succeeded in crossing our goal line only once during the first half, and at the beginning of the second half the score stood 6 to 6. Then began one of the hardest struggles for supremacy ever witnessed on a Southern gridiron. About the middle of the first half, a steady down-pour of rain began, and the field was soon slippery with mud. This was a serious handicap to our quick starting, which was our main dependence. By the use of the heavy tackle and guard-back formation, the Virginians brought every man into play, and each time did our line charge against them and hold the runner for a moment on the line, until his heavy support by sheer weight crushed back our line, and he fell forward for a gain of only his length. Each time, our men stood there with a sublime courage, and endeavor to check the onslaught. But it was useless. They could only attempt to keep the score down. The final score stood 23 to 6.

Barring weight, it was the generally expressed opinion that the teams were evenly matched, and that Carolina played by far the better football.

The season, thus far successful from the highest point of view, was brought to a disappointing close in Charlotte on Thanksgiving Day, with a defeat from Clemson College, 22 to 10. The game was hardly seriously considered, and looked forward to as a sure victory by the University at large. But the South Carolinians entered the game with an aggressiveness and successful trickiness which so surprised our players, that they had no trouble in winning out. They thus placed themselves in one game in a class higher than they have ever before occupied.

During the season our team won six games out of eight, scoring 192 points to their opponents' 45. The season was a successful one, from the point of view that college men should look at it,—that of true sport. We have never had a team do so much, with so little promise of success at the beginning of the year. It more than demonstrated its worthiness to represent the University, and the excellent football it played, despite its serious handicap of being probably the lightest team we ever had, is a source of pride to everyone who knows football. The team was made of the right kind of stuff through and through.

The University Record

The University Record was established in 1896 by the Faculty and students of the University. The purpose of this publication is to give a complete record of the more important events of University life. It also aims to keep the Alumni in communication with the University and thus bind them more closely to their Alma Mater. The Record is now in its fifth volume and its value to the University has been eminently demonstrated. It is issued quarterly under the management of a committee appointed by the Faculty.

Journal of the Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society

The Journal represents the Science Department of the University of North Carolina. It was established by the Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society in order to publish the results of scientific investigation in the laboratories of the University. It is now in its eighteenth volume. The first was published in 1884 under the management of Professors Graves, Philips and Harris. The University of North Carolina is the only institution of the South that has maintained a publication of this kind. The Journal has now over four hundred exchanges from twenty-five different countries, some of which are published by the most important scientific societies of the world. The Journal stands as a memorial of what the University has contributed to the world's stock of scientific knowledge and is a worthy monument of the great man whose name it bears.

The Classes

Behold the Senior. What an air
Of solemn wisdom in his stare!
So much he knows that we should fear
To say a word while he is near.
He knows he knows: 'tis his chief aim
To put less learned folk to shame;
And nothing gives him more delight
Than quoting books to prove he's right.
Girls do not like him, for they say
He knows far too much more than they.
But do not fear him; some day you
May be a Learned Senior too.

The Junior is not so grim;
His knowledge does not trouble him.
But still he always knows enough
To run a most stupendous bluff.
He knows just what to say to please
The ladies; so he is with ease
A favorite. Sometimes, 'tis said,
This pleasant treatment swells his head.
Commencement past, though, it grows small;
He sees 'twas not his charms at all.
His charm while with the ladies lay
But in his "rag" he gave away.

Observe the Sophomore, my child;
How innocent! How sweetly mild!
Yet men—a fact we should deplore—
Full many crimes lay at his door.
Despite this earnest air so plain,
They say things of his idle brain
That you or I would think unkind.
He has one great task on his mind.
He takes the Freshman, weak and slim,
And tries to make a man of him,
That next year he may grow to be
As great and good a man as he.

The feeble Fresh does not deserve
Much notice here—few words will serve,
He smokes a cigar when he can
And thinks he looks like a big man;
And to be mannish he essays
In many other silly ways.
Yet all these things, I grieve to say,
His greenness all the more display,
The very vilest, even Wheeze,
Revile the Freshman when they please.
Child, may you never be so small!
The Fresh-man is no man at all.

The House That Ven Built

This is the house that Ven built.
This is the Fresh
That came to the house that Ven built.
This is the Math
That was took by the Fresh
That came to the house that Ven built.
This is Major William Cain
That blinded the Fresh
That took the Math,
When he came to the house that Ven built.
This is the Soph with the look of scorn
That whistled the Freshman all forlorn,
That was blinded on Math by Billy Cain,
When he came to the house that Ven built.
This is the Junior with gladsome hand
That silenced the Soph with the shrill refrain,
And booted the Freshman all forlorn,
That was blinded on Math by Billy Cain,
When he came to the house that Ven built.
This is the Senior all shaven and scrubbed,
With his handsome front right newly tubbed,
That helped the Junior of cheerful mein,
That rebuked the Soph with the look of scorn,
Whose whistle brought out the blush of shame
On the downy cheek of the Fresh forlorn
That was blinded on Math by Billy Cain
When he came to the house that Ven built.
This is—
But here I must have pity;
And sadly close this charming ditty,
Which is true, as you'll see if you come to the city,
Where stands the house that Ven built.

Mr. Flaherty's Visit to the Hill

With Apologies to All Concerned

"Wal, Pat, me boy, 'tis a gr-eat place. Siventeen Prsidints, sivinty mibers of Congress, fifty sax guv'nors, two hundr-red an' sivin bar-r kapers, thr-ray preachers, two Tom Humes an' wan Collier-r Cobb hes ben projected at this gr-reat sate af lar-r-ning. Wan af th' grandest—"

"Hold, ye shpalpeen, which way does yez compass point?" This was from Pat, one of Mike's admiring listeners.

"Which way does me compass point, is it? Towar-r-ds th' cinter af th' a-r-rth. 'Th' Univar-r-sity af Nor-rth Carolina is the cinter af th' ar-rth,' says me friend Char-lie Baskerville. 'Not only that,' says he, puffing out his for-rthy-eight inch chist an' thristing his thumbs undther his ar-rem pits, 'but I am th' cinter af th' Univar-rsity af Nor-rth Carolina.' With this statement he wagged his head with a knowing look an' a cloud af shmoke ristid upon it, which I thought was a halo, but me frind Wheeler says to me in a whisper, 'Tis gas.'"

"Whin I shtruck th' metrop'lis me fir-rst intintion was to shtrroll oop th' boulev-ar-d an' say me frind th' Prsidint. On me way what should I say but a familiar-looking object. It was comin' along ver-ry slow an' daliber-rate loike, an' at th' fir-rst glance it samed to meself that I saw Mrs. Flinnegin's cow, th' wan thot wint dlry; but what was me astonishmint, Pat, whin on th' second squint me ould eyes bahild me frind Williams, th' wan th' boys calls Hor-race.

"'How ar-re yez,' says he, with a gr-in thot would put Teddy Roozvilt to th' blush. 'I havn't had a percipion af yez shinin' coun'nance since me las' cow died,' he says. 'I'm gettin ould now, Mike,' he says, in a slow, doleful way. 'Me cinter af vacellation is gettin' ver-ry wake,' he says. 'Th' toime was wance whin I could make two differ-rint sta-atemints about th' same thing in wan licture. In thim days I was a gr-reat Psychologis', he says, 'but now,' he says, with tears in his eyes, 'it takes me a whole ter-rum bafore I can change me sta-atemint.' 'The bist I can do,' he says, 'is to make wan assiver-ration in th' fall an' conthradict it in th' spr-ring with anither,' he says.

"'Me cows, howivir, is th' solace af me ould age an' th' wan pr-rop av me Ego. 'Nixt to me cows me wife is ver-ry intertainin,' he says. 'She played me a shly thrick at th' las' r-affle af mar-rks. I had me hat all filled with foives', he says, 'an' wint out in th' yar-rd to tuck th' cov'rin' aroun' me cows f'r th' night,' he says. 'What should me wife do,' says he, 'but while I'm out dhrop some saxes in me hat af foives,' says he. 'So whin I began dhrawin' me mark-rks to me astonishmint what should I dhraw out but a sax an' anither an' anither,' he says. 'I looked all the way through me James to say if I could find a way out af me predic-amint, but 'twas no use,' he says. 'There was the sax an' there was th' pa-aper, an' me ould friend an' shtrandby James says nothin' about saxes an' pa-apers, so doon on th' pa-aper goes th' sax. Me althruistic faylin's was ver-ry mooch shocked,' he says, 'but I rasolved to look out f'r me ehanst an' get it back on me wife. The opportunity came th' wake bafore las,' says he. 'Me wife was milkin me cow what goes be th' name af Sal. Sal an' meself had had an' undtherstandin' bafore han', he says. 'So I wink at Sal an Sal winks at me an thim we both wink tegither, an' thim Sal kicked over th' bucket af milk. Me joy was complate,' he says, 'an' I had to milk sivinteen cows in as many minyits to hide me amusemint.

“ ‘Wall, I’ll have to lave yez’, he says. ‘Me wife has sint me to go lay in a new supply af naketies an’ I want to go arly an’ avoid th’ r-rush. Do yez know whither they be sellin’ f’r a pinny apace or-r two f’r a cint?’ he says. ‘Wall, no matter,’ says he, ‘I intend layin’ meself in a supply whither they be sellin’ at the wan pr-ricc or th’ ither.’ ‘Good bye,’ says he, ‘an’ if yez hav th’ toime come out to me villa an’ I’ll show yez why it is that psychoology an’ th’ milkin’ af cows is wan an’ th’ same identical thing.’

“Pat, I found me toime was limited. So me legs began flyin’ wance more towar-rds th’ Prisdint’s office. Suddenly there loomed oop in th’ distance a man who was actuly balancin’ himsilf while walking on th’ livil gr-ground.

“He comes to mesilf with a sarious look in the’ wan eye an’ a wink in th’ ither. ‘I am a Noble fellow,’ says he to me. Upon which he pulls out a little book an’ makes a note. ‘This wur-ruk is killin’ me,’ he says. ‘It is a gr-reat undtherta-akin’ to make oop jokes. I’ve only made oop foive th’ day an’ it is the juty to make oop foive more,’ he says. ‘I’m thinking sariously af givin’ oop me job,’ he says. ‘It is comin’ to a pr-retty pass,’ he says, ‘whin a fellow like miself gets only two thousand dollar-rs to make oop jokes an’ to tr-ravel a-r-round th’ Shtate f’r his hilt. Nivir-thilless,’ says he, ‘I’ll br-race oop, or, which is th’ same to mesilf, I’ll get br-raced oop an’ forget th’ hivy juties which ar-re weighin’ me down, body an’ soul, and if yez should liver run oop against a job, sub, such ez Superintendent af Public Instruccion jist dr-rop a little line to yez ould friend Mar-rk Cicero Staphens Noble an’ I will send yez me la-atest volume af jokes be r-retur-ren mail,’ he says.

“I lift this mooch-opprised man, Pat, thinking how pleasant was me lot in comparrisan with his own, since me juty was only to carry oop a load of mor-rtar to the sixteenth shtory af th’ tinimint that be buildin’ over beyant two hundr-red an’ foive times th’ day.

“Wanse more I shtarted f’r th’ Prisdint’s office but me evil gainces was on top af me good, Pat, an’ ’twas no use. What should I say comin’ towar-rds me but me little friend Collier-r Cobb, walking all over himsilf an’ thrying to look ez if he was sax feet tall instade af thray.

“ ‘Good mornin’,’ says he, ‘it becomes me painful juty to introduce mesilf. I am Collier-r Cobb, ha’r plenipotentiary, geologist extraordiary an’ miner-ralogist pecular-r to his dignity Fr-ranceis Priston Venable, Prisdint af th’ Univaar-rsity af Nor-rth Car-rolina.’ ‘Come down to me pla-ace af amusemint,’ says he.

“I wint, Pat, an’ found me friend C. C. ver-ry intertaining.

“ ‘Me whole shtudy for the las’ tin ye-ars,’ he says, ‘has been how to bacomc pop’lar-r with th’ boys. I em now,’ says he, ‘th’ most pop’lar Professor af Geology in th’ Univaar-rsity af Nor-rth Carolina. You should say me lecturin’ to me class in Geology two, which be th’ way is th’ gr-ratest pud in College,’ he says. ‘Wan af me shtrong points is boring holes in anticlines an’ synclines,’ he says. ‘Anither wan af me shtrong points is lanter-rn liectures,’ says he. But I must shtop,’ he says, ‘me points is all so shtrong it wad take foriver to innummer-rate thim. I wad like to talk to yez longer-r,’ he says, ‘but I am going aff this aft to Hatter-ras Island to make mesilf anither colliecton af jokes. Good bye,’ says he, ‘an’ don’t for-rget that Geology two is a science af ver-ry racent growth.’

“ ‘Pullin’ out me watch I saw, Pat, that I jist had th’ toime to ketsh me train, so I had to lave this gr-reat sate of larning without sayin’ minny af me ould frinds; but, be gorra, ez shure ez me name’s Michael Flaherty I am going back again an’ I’ll hav’ more to tell yez th’ nixt toime.’”

Then out spoke brave Horatius,
 The captain of the gate,
 "To every man upon this earth
 Death cometh soon or late.
 And how can man die better
 Than by Psychology slain,
 Than on the spot where smitten down
 His fellows fall like rain.
 In yon straight path a thousand
 Can well be stopped by three
 Now who will stand on either hand
 And keep the bridge with me?"

Then out spoke Joshius Gorius,
 A Physicist proud was he,
 "Lo, I will stand at thy right hand,
 And keep the bridge with thee."
 And out spake Billius Cainius,
 Of Conic blood was he,
 "I will abide at thy left side,
 And keep the bridge with thee."
 "Horatius," quoth Venable,
 "As thou sayest, let it be."
 And straight against that great array
 Forth went the mighty three.

TWAS in the good year nineteen one
Did Unele Sam decree
A stipend fore each mining school
Each year ten thousand D.

The A. and M's, he thought the boys
To trust this stipend to;
Joe Holmes and Ven did disagree—
“Not so, forsooth, not so!”

A claim, a claim they made amain
For institutions three;
For U. Va., U. Tex.,
And the great U. N. C.

To Uncle Sam their claim they made
’Twas thus it ran, to wit—
“We are the boys to teach the mines,
The yokels cannot do it.”

Up rose a mighty yokel then,
He girt him for the fray.
With gas and papers armed he him
(This was ever his way.)

To north, to north he made his way,
He put his case full plain.—
He stamped and bellowed lustily;
He ranted there amain.

“That school, that school of Ven, I trow,
I know that school of Ven.
In days of old I ran the show,
A snap ’twas not worth then.

“That school is not prepared to teach
A mining engineer;
My college teaches everything
On mining full and clear.

We teach them all about the ground,
We do, from A to Z.
Take note! Take note! We also teach
The great geology!”

"A horticulturist we have
A yokel great is he.
He teaches all the bones and plants
Of the geology."

An old Committeeman arose,
He glared at Wince full stern,
"I prithee tell me what in this Geology they learn?"

The yokel looked a knowing look,
A knowing look looked he;
"As all men know, we teach them how
The Lord produced a tree."

"We teach to them the way, also,
We find bones in the ground,
Which prove the ancient elephant
Weighed near two million pound."

"But stay! Come now, answer me this,"
Another glare glared he,
"What would you teach your Mining schools?
Pray answer this for me!"

An awful frown the other frowned,
A fearful frown, I trow,
"I'm President of A. and M.; There's nothing I don't know."

The old Committeeman looked pained,
"Hold, hold!" said he, "Enough!
Whizands, whizands, good man, prithee,
Think not to run a bluff!"

"The papers and the public then,
Mayhap these airs may fool.
But do not think to make us think
You know a mining school."

Joe Holmes and Ven smiled merrily,
Right merrily smiled they,
And held their peace, for well they saw
That all things came their way.

ALL day long each team was bluffing
Every man that could was puffing,
Puffing his extra gas.
Old East boys claimed a fellow
Who was a Bull, he was Seat Weller
Three hundred pounds of mass.

Seat should play center on the East
"Kid" Haywood was put against this beast
To win for South the game.
Other players worthy of note
Were Bully Jones and one "He goat,"—
Some know as "Lamb" by name.

Well, midnight came, the moon arose
To see the cuffs, the kicks, the blows
And excitement intense
When old East and South were ready
And nerves of each were steady
The game did then commence.

Were I to give you in detail
The bloody scenes, 'twould make you quail
'T would make you sure to swoon
For when such things as this take place,
The moon does blush and hide her face
The stars do like the moon.

The features of the game were these,
"Coach" Blackwell was referee, since Wheeze
Forsooth to him did yield.
The ball was started by the East
Then Bull and Lamb and every beast
Ran briskly down the field.

The gallant South did then return
With blocking and fast speed to burn
The ball from whence it came.
"Senator" Hassel by the way
Failed to get into this play
Gwyn and "Mincey" the same.

From first to last it did look blue
For East to win 'gainst men so true
As those who fought so well;
But luck, you know, like tide must change,
And this it did although so strange
I do not like to tell.

It now grew dark, the game waxed hot
The reason why I do not wot
But this I now do enter,
The crowd did see the South's team fleeing
For "Kid" was found refereeing
He who was South's center.

For South things went from bad to worse
Her rooters railed, began to curse—
It did no good at all.
Now 'tis time for me to mention
Mocking-bird Lamb, late invention,
Made touchdown with the ball.

So old East won, but ere I close
May I not speak of South? Her woes
She can at least bear well.
May her sorrow and griefs be light
May she live, play another night
Till then farewell, farewell.

IN Battle Park there slowly strolled
A maiden and a Med.
Each pretty maiden knows of old
The kind of things he said.

Down by the murmuring brooklet's side
They sat; the birds o'erhead
Cooed lovingly as if they tried
To say the things he said.

A little crayfish in the brook
Became quite interested;
A firm hold on his thumb it took
To hear the things he said.

Oh, what a change! Oh, shocking word!
The maid in horror fled.
'Tis to be hoped few maids have heard,
The kind of things he said.

In dreams, behold, my lost love came to me,
With veiled features, and with slow, soft tread;
Nor could I have discerned that it was she—
(For she was silent, and the moon o'erhead
Cast but a wan, cold, unrevealing light;—)
Save by the single blossom that she wore
Imprisoned in her tresses soft and bright;
A glowing rose, that in its rich heart bore
The golden treasure of the summer sky.
“Dear heart,” I cried, “this crimson flower of love
Which I did give thee as we wept good-by,
No death has altered; speak to me and prove
That like this rose thy love no death can die,
But lives unchanged beyond the darksome tomb!”
She, as unheeding, smiled upon my sigh
And passed with noiseless footstep from the room:
Bearing my pleadings, (as I thought) unheard,
Thro’ the still darkness of the early day—
But as the earth from its deep slumber stirred,
Waking,—upon my breast a red rose lay.

ABOUT our college, besides the books,
We have a Glenn and babbling Brooks,
We have a Wood; we have a Hill,
And Archers Hunt; There's game to kill.

Of fish we have both Herring and Bass,
A Fisher we have who does surpass.
And he who takes the trouble and looks
Will find that we have also Hooks.

We have a Council, Nobles, Kings,
But this nor strife nor quarrel brings,
For closer than the Golden Fleece,
We always keep with us our Peace.

We have men of every sort,
And, though one man is always Short,
Still, by a Deal we're in the fore,
Even without naming Moore.

Thus, in this age of greatest dirth,
We have Merritt, still, and Worth,
And one who, Prior, leads the rest,
Except that one who's always Best.

And still, though I say all I can
We have in College but just one Mann
You'll find two others if you look
But one's a Blackman, the other Cook.

DR. BATTLE—"Is the power of the Czar absolutely unlimited?"

STUDENT—"Comparatively so, sir."

DR. RAPER—"What of tariff, Mr. Reid?"

"A bad thing, sir."

"Oh, is that the opinion of the average farmer?"

DR. BATTLE—(lecturing) "Meanwhile the army of the king was intact, and—

Voice from Amen Corner—"Where did you say his army was, sir?"

DR. R—"Mr. —, have you an adequate conception of the significance of integration and differentiation as economic factors?"

"Unprepared, Doctor."

"Well, Mr. B., is value governed by utility or cost of production?"

Byrnes—(waking up,) "Yes, sir."

DOCTOR BATTLE—"What great event occurred in 1861, Mr. Patton?"

Patton—(after mature deliberation) "O yes, Doctor! I was born in that year."

FRESHMAN—"Doctor Stacy, can you tell me which is Archie Henderson's room?"

CHAIRMAN VAUGHAN—(trying to keep order in the Fresh Caucus) "Gentlemen, gentlemen, please be quiet; you ought to have more respect for your honorable mothers at home than to cut up this way!"

From the side-lines in the Soph-Junior game—"Pull off your nose guard, Jack, and scare them back!"

"Yes," said Squire Patton, "my highest mark was on Pedagogy. I made a five on that. I see that Pedagogy is my strong point and I'm going to make a specialty of it this spring."

JUDGE McRAE—interrupted in the midst of a lecture by the entrance of Dr. —, "Come in, Doctor, come in! Am glad to see you—we were just lecturing on nuisances."

H-LT-N.—No, by no means; talking and eloquence are not the same thing.

T.—Yes, Giles' trousers are cut with circular saws.

SW-NK.—We believe that ordinarily preachers are not "scrappers."

C-M-IG.—The best development of the jaw comes from constant use of it. No, we do not think that this would detract from the charm of your personality. It will not hurt you; Sibley continuously rests his mind by talking.

H-S-K.—We can recommend Dr. Ruffin's Method for the development of the chest and shoulders. He once was as frail as you.

Prof. R-P-R.—(1) We are informed that it was Bulluck who saluted you with, "Good morning, Freshman!" (2) No. We cannot draw the "Maximum Satisfaction with Minimum Amount" curve that you request. We refer you to Oliver or Stafford.

ST-T-N.—You would better not smoke it, if as you say, it makes you so deathly sick. If you persevere though, that habit might make you look manly.

W-L-L-R AND L. H-LT.—The high jump is the event in which you can have most chance of winning a reputation in athletic circles.

H-M-L-N AND H-R-I-G.—We thought your moustaches were coming on very nicely. But if, as you say, they show a tendency to look like Billy Nobles', use Pear's Soap.

This Week's Riddles

Who is it whose name begins with a K, who can swear out of one section of his mouth, eat with another, smoke a cigar between, grin with the remainder, and still have plenty of room?

A dime novel, not to cost over 55c, may be purchased from Doc Kluttz by the reader answering the above.
